

Interactive Data Language (IDL) License Policy

In order to effectively utilize the limited number of Interactive Data Language (IDL) licenses on NAS-supported workstations or supercomputing systems:

- Each user is limited to a single interactive IDL license.
- When using the IDL command line, after four hours of being idle and not running a job, the license will be revoked.
- If users are waiting for licenses, a IDL process that has been idle for more than ten minutes may be terminated to revoke its license and make it available to another user.
